

George Wittenborn (1905-1974), legendary emigre bookseller, publisher, dealer and friend to artists ranging from Leger, Arp, Ernst, Picasso and Braque to Calder, Beuys, Warhol, Johns, Ono, Richter, Baldessari and Nauman, kept a guestbook over the many decades of his passionate career in connoisseurship. On March 16, 1944, the Mexican painter and writer Miguel Covarrubias drew a hand in Wittenborn's guestbook in lieu of his signature--and with that a tradition was born. This monumental volume, designed with cut-out alphabetical letter tabs like an old-fashioned encyclopedia, contains renderings of hands by roughly 300 of the twentieth century's finest and most challenging artists. Essays include Henri Focillon's 1939 In Praise of Hands and Jan Ceuleers' engaging narrative biography. Ceuleers writes, Wittenborn's guestbook is a book of friends, a book of handshakes that stands for greeting, good-bye, friendship, solidarity, unity and agreement, and the doubling of power achieved through partnership.
