Very Respectfully Yours, &c, WILLIAM GREEN. Mr. Deane stated that he was much impressed with the value of the suggestion, that Capt. Gabriel Archer, who accompanied Captain Newport on a trip of discovery up the James River, leaving Jamestown on the 21st of May, 1607, and returning on the 27th of that month, was the author of the relations referred to. In the second paper, entitled The Description of the Now-Discovered River and Country of Virginia, &c., the writer says, And within sight of land, into the sea, we expect at time of year to have a good fishing for codd; as both at our first entering we might perceive by palpable conjecture, seeing the codd follow the ship, yea, bite at the blank; as also out of my own experience, not far from to the northward, the fishing I found in my first voyage to Virginia. This is the passage referred to by Mr. Green. Mr. Deane said, that, when in England a year or two since, he examined the manuscript of these narrations in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, with a view of getting some clue to their authorship. The first paper, A Relation, &c., he observed was in one, and he thought, a contemporaneous hand-writing; the other two papers were in one hand-writing, but different from that of the first paper. He thought we should not necessarily infer from this that the author of the three papers was not the same person. TO TAKE NOTICE OF THE DEATH OF THEIR SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT, Hon. LEVI LINCOLN.
