

Michael Douglas married Catherine Zeta Jones at the Plaza Hotel in November 2000 amongst the tightest security imaginable; but it wasn't enough, someone crashed the wedding. In fact four people did and they were all paparazzi photographers. The result was a fire storm of litigation to protect the privacy of the event in an action played out over two Continents for three years. Here, for the first time ever the lawyer involved at the very heart of that action tells the full inside story of the people involved, the dramas and extraordinary parade of characters that made up the trial. It reads like fiction but every word is true. Here are Michael Douglas, the Marquesa de Varela and Catherine-Zeta Jones like you have never seen them before.
